Little success in halting formaldehyde fumes

Measures to stop or retard the strong formaldehyde fumes that have permeated the Amberwood senior citizen apartment complex in Daly City are continuing, but without much success so far, the county office of Occupational Health Industrial Hygiene has reported.

OHIH Director Andy Ramos said Sabina Realty, manager of the property at 205 Cerro Drive, first tried spraying the suspect particleboard kitchen cabinets with Valspar, a covering that it was hoped would seal the panels.

But that hasn't worked, Ramos said, noting that testing by his office revealed no decrease in the amount of formaldehyde in the air. The realty firm now is providing better ventilation in the 123-unit complex of two buildings and is brushing on liquid Valspar, in hopes that the thicker application will work, Ramos said.

If that doesn't succeed, then a "stronger approach" would be needed, he said. The original recommendation by his investigators had been to replace the particleboard cabinets, which have been blamed for the sore throats, watery eyes and skin rashes of many of the elderly residents.

The problem came to light in late November, and soon dozens of residents had reported to the management that they had these symptoms in various degrees of severity.

An OHIH survey showed the culprit to be the treated particleboard.

Ramos said his agency has no authority to order the cabinets replaced. The remedy will have to be "to attack the source," meaning the manufacturers of the treated building materials, he added.

There are no standards now for indoor air quality, as there are for outdoor quality, no are there any quality control standards for the use of formaldehyde, widely used in industry as a preservative. Because it's used nationwide, the standards would have to be set by the federal government, Ramos said.

"This should not have happened," he asserted.

The Amberwood complex was constructed a year ago by American Development Corp. and opened for occupancy in April 1979. Some of the residents who moved in then said they had been suffering ever since. They said they had suspected something within their apartments was causing it, because the symptoms would disappear whenever they left the apartments, but return when they came back.

Brrrrrrrrrrrr

The recent cold weather has made a nuisance of itself at the Colma Town Hall. Because of the current $125,000 remodeling project on the old building, there has been no heat for the past week or so, and coats and gloves have been part of the office working uniform. It's reasonably comfortable when the sun is out, Town Clerk Frances Liston said, but without the sun it's just plain cold. This means too that night meetings in the council chamber are out, so the Town Council postponed last Wednesday's regular meeting till Feb. 20, in hope that the heater will be back in operation by then.

Computers now are preparing next generation

By JOHN CURRY
Post Staff Writer

Since they're going to have to spend the rest of their lives with the whirring, blinking things, it should surprise no one that the computer age has reached to the lower levels of the public educational system to prepare the next generation to live with them.

For the Jefferson Elementary School District in Daly City, that means daily exercises at the keyboards for some 680 third through eighth graders at three schools in its Computer Assisted Instruction Program, 720 more after school, and hundreds more on a waiting list. If the federal Emergency School Aid Act money keeps coming for it, this could be a glimpse at the future of public education.

So far, the Computer Curriculum Corp. contrivances at Benjamin Franklin Intermediate, Colma Middle and George Washington Elementary schools are handling 13 different programs, in mathematics, Spanish math, adult arithmetic, problem solving, mathematics strands, reading comprehension, reading, reading in Spanish, math enrichment, and introduction to algebra.

The computers, each with 16 terminals, or screens and keyboards, went into service at Colma and George Washington last school year and at Ben Franklin last September. The youngsters in seven classes at each school spend a half-period, or 20 minutes, each day in a particular subject running through their work on the computers, half a class at a time.

Along with the questions and answers, the little screens scroll out greetings, conversation and wit with the student's individual program, all tied into the regular classroom work and designed to provide not only an introduction to the use of computers and instant read-outs on their academic progress, but to hold their interest.

The computer hasn't replaced the teacher and isn't likely to. True-false or multiple-choice questions related to current classwork still must be programmed by the teachers in the computer labs, who then must see that their adolescent charges get their work done.

"It's like keeping a hose attached to the wagon and making it go," Ben Franklin computer lab teacher Pat Chandler remarked during one of her almost constant trips around the long rows of facing computer terminal desks. "They can't say 'I'll do it at home, I've done it, or I can't do it.'"

It is paying off, she says, because the students generally gain academically by one to two months for each month they work with the computer. This is in effect constant testing, against a time limit, and the numbers of right and wrong answers are scored and tallied daily on separate graph charts for each student and posted on the wall.

Some of the graphs are gently-curving lines across the squares. Others show violent up-and-down changes from day to day. The students now in the computer labs just started Feb. 4, the beginning of the second semester, replacing another set of classes that used them the first semester. Their daily scores vary with the complexity of what they're doing and seemingly with the state of health of the computer. "They're a little frustrated right now," Ms. Chandler told a visitor. "The computer was down 15 minutes ago."

Since not everyone's academic ability is the same, the students are assigned to various "levels" after a 10-lesson trial run on the computer, which then compares their progress and ability and categorizes them. For those having difficulty in a particular skill area, a fixed drill lesson in that skill area can be assigned. By signing in with his or her name and number, the computer comes up with the correct program for the day, often opening the program with a cheery "Hello John" or "Hello Mary."

But students and teachers alike seem to like the computers. "The teachers I'm working with seem to be enthusiastic," Ms. Chandler said. "I can show them the progress of their students."

The youngsters also can see immediately how they're doing and where they need help. The computer is a time-saving for student and teacher alike here, Ms. Chandler said, because with instant corrections of wrong answers on the screen, "The student doesn't have to perpetuate the same mistake" in his classwork.

Likewise, the teacher can have fewer papers to correct manually. Ms. Chandler, a former math and science teacher herself, recalled that "I would have to sit down and do 40 papers every day."

She said she hoped to have all the school's students working on the computers eventually. And for those interested in the computers themselves, she said she is working on an elective basic computer programming class for next year.

But the day isn't finished for the computers when school lets out. That other 720 students, from public and private school third through eighth grades, have signed up for after-school instruction, with reading and math courses emphasized. They get there any way they can, Ms. Chandler said.

They attend the lab for 20 minutes, with each course taking 10 minutes.

Mrs. Audrey Chan, district coordinator of ESAA pilot programs, agreed that student academic progress has been very good with use of the computers. Last year, she said, most students who worked for six months on the computers showed a year's gain in their school work, with some classes showing a two-year gain.

The two-year pilot program will be over with the end of this school year, but Mrs. Chan said it has been a success and the district wants to continue it. To do that, the district has applied to the federal Department of Education for a three-year grant to operate the labs, at least at their present levels and possibly to expand them.

A reply should be coming from Washington, D.C., in April or May, Mrs. Chan said, but noted that program funding notification has come as late as Sept. 1.

Strong winds strike Pacifica; homes wrecked; loss is great

By BILL HURSCHMANN
Post Staff Writer

Winds and rains of tornado-like force struck the Park Pacifica area behind the Linda Mar Valley in Pacifica Tuesday morning, leaving in their wake a trail of debris from destroyed homes and vehicles.

Surprisingly, there were no personal injuries other that minor lacerations from broken windows.

Two houses were reported to be totally destroyed. As many as 20 others suffered major structural damage, authorities said.

The Red Cross was called to the scene, but chose not to open a full-fledged shelter. Instead, volunteers manned a large Red Cross bus and supplied food to those whose homes were destroyed or damaged.

The bulk of the damage was sustained on Everglades Drive, where one house was destroyed. A second house, this one on Grand Teton Drive, also was a total loss. Homes on Cape Breton Drive also suffered major damage.

Authorities would not speculate on the total loss, although each of the destroyed homes are in the $150,000 range. Losses probably will total nearly $1 million.

Winds in excess of 60 miles per hour whipped through Park Pacifica beginning at 2:30 a.m. Tuesday. Initially, all power in the area went out, with huge power lines being knocked over by the winds. Then, about 15 minutes later, havoc struck.

The Jo Girard home at 1053 Everglades sustained major damage. Three-quarters of its roof was blown off by the high winds. Its wall facing the street was knocked down, leaving only three walls standing. Both Mrs. Girard and her 17 year old daughter, Jackie, had to be rescued through a bedroom window by firemen. Neither were injured.

According to Captain Harvey Georgeson in the Pacifica Fire Department's Linda Mar station, the entire roof of 38 Cape Breton Court was lifted by the winds and deposited 100 yards up a hillside. The occupant is believed to be James Hilliard.

"When we first arrived it looked like a house had exploded because of the immense mass of debris in the street (Everglades)," Georgeson said. "Residents there told us the wind came through like a jet. I'd guess it was well over 60 miles per hour."

Georgeson said the roof from 1053 Everglades blew across the street to 1048 Everglades, smashing the front of that house and doing severe damage to a new Volkswagon van.

He said he talked with Joe and Kitty Lorenzo, who live next door at 1057 Everglades. Georgeson said Lorenzo told him that he heard loud wind noises and went to the front room to look out. Just as Lorenzo arrived in the front room, his bedroom window was blown out, with Mrs. Lorenzo protecting herself by pulling the covers over her. The force from that wind knocked Lorenzo backwards over the sofa in the living room, Georgeson said he told him.

Annette Vitali, 1036 Everglades, said, "We heard a lot of thunder and lightening and one big flash at about 2:30. Then we felt a lot of pressure on our ears. We got up to look outside and it looked like the roof on our neighbor's house was gone. We thought it was impossible, but we were wrong."

Ms. Vitali said three large beams on her front porch were lifted and moved about three inches by the winds.

According to one wire service report, Tod Eastham, a resident in the Park Pacifica area, said a window in his house blew out, scattering glass throughout the room and injuring his wife, who required stitches. Firemen could not confirm this, although Georgeson said he heard a report that one person requiring medical attention had been taken away prior to the arrival of firemen.

As the winds ripped off roofs, pieces of the roofs smashed into automobiles, other rooves and sides of houses, causing damage to at least seven homes on Everglades, and about half a dozen each on Grand Teton and Cape Breton.

The force of the wind was such that automobiles were literally tossed into garages, creating further damage.

Firemen remained on the scene all morning cleaning up and treating many of the residents suffering from minor shock.

PG&E work crews were out in the Park Pacifica area attemping to restore power much of the morning, but with limited success.

The rest of the North County reported minimal damage. All cities were struck with flooding, with some suffering power outages.

In Daly City, manhole covers were reportedly blown off, and flooding was heaviest in the area near 89th and 90th avenues.

In San Bruno a tree was reported down at 2760 Valleywood Drive. In Millbrae, a tree reportedly struck a roof at 503 Capuchino Drive, causing minimal damage.

Offenders encouraged to change diet

Some San Mateo County probation officers are using a new approach on youthful offenders — they're trying to encourage them to change their diet on the theory that their criminal behavior may be a chemical reaction.

"I don't want the public to think we're out there administering some panacea, some form of Indian medicine," explained Chief Probation Officer J.R. "Dick" Donati in an interview.

Orthomolecular (body chemistry) medicine focuses on how nutrition and vitamins mold one's behavior. Criminal justice professionals in the Bay Area are becoming more and more interested in the effects of food on behavior.

"For probation officers who supervise cases on a daily basis, there is a constant question of what makes people depressed, what makes them act out, what makes them have a poor self-image," said Donati.

Donati is allowing those probation officers who want to do so to counsel their probationers on orthomolecular matters, but there are no plans to make diet regulation a condition of probation.

Interest was created in San Mateo County after several adult and juvenile probation officers attended one of several seminars in recent months on the subject of the impact of diet on criminal behavior.

Many orthomolecular physicians believe that food additives and ingredients like sugar and white flour tend to make some people hyperactive, depressed or in some way act in a negative, violent or unhappy manner.

Several probation officers in San Mateo County have implemented changes in their own lives, eliminating sugars, additives, alcohol and other foodstuffs, while adding vitamin and mineral supplements to their diets.

The results have been positive to most officers, prompting them to share their enthusiastic support with probationers.

"There have been changes in many staff members," Donati said. "The morale has improved tremendously in this department."

Donati, though, wants to proceed cautiously.

"I think it (nutrition counseling) is a tool which should be used," but on a voluntary basis.

Several Bay Area counties have made changes in their juvenile hall and jail menus, but Donati is not recommending that for San Mateo County at this point. He said that some county nutritionists are studying body chemistry and diet on their own.

Donati said that "fads" have come and gone in probation over the years, but that he doesn't view body chemistry as a fad.

"No new approach to helping probationers has caught the enthusiasm (of probation officers) like this," Donati said. "They are genuine as hell in wanting to make life better for themselves and their clients."

Struck by his staff's enthusiasm, Donati last fall attended a seminar on body chemistry himself.

"I certainly have become more aware of what you put into your mouth," Donati said. "For some reason, I feel that the time is right for body chemistry in that it makes people feel better and act better."

Donati, though, is keeping his eye on new developments in the field, as well as to the continuing debate on orthomolecular medicine.

Several probation departments nationwide have reported dramatic changes in youthful and adult offenders once they eliminated certain foodstuffs, primarily sweets and additives, from their diets.

Donati's assistant, Earl Smith, said that there likely will be some public skepticism, "and there should be. As the public learns more, there will be general acceptance."

WANTED FOR MURDER

The Daly City Police Department has issued a state-wide bulletin for Rodofo Mendez Cato, pictured here, wanted for the murder of Anthony Barley, 22, Feb. 8 in Daly City. Police say witnesses told them Cato, 27, and Barley were arguing at Barley's home when Cato allegedly shot the other man several times in the head. Cato is described as 5-foot-7, 160 pounds, black hair, brown eyes and may have a mustache. He may be driving a 1970 faded green or grey long-bed pickup truck with black primer, a large mirror on each side and possibly a wooden tailgate, license numver 348 45G. Cato, whose address is believed to be 59 Perita St., Daly City, and not 56 Perita as previously reported, has family ties in the Los Angeles area and is wanted there for assault on a police officer. Bail in the Daly City case has been set at $100,000. Any information should be directed to detectives Ron Schenone or Ray Mutter at 992-1225 or 992-4500, ext. 241, and referred to case 80-1040.

Clubs continue their meetings

Many students enjoy getting involved with more than one club throughout the year.

They sacrifice their time and energy to make those clubs successful and to make themselves better people.

Week after week, different clubs have meetings that sometimes are scheduled in conflict.

The activity period is a time for students to do homework, make up tests, attend club meetings and get extra help from teachers.

Last year, the activity periods every other Wednesday were stopped. Teachers and students started complaining that there was insufficent time to do what needed to be done.

Some people reasoned that students had not been using the allotted time constructively, instead wandering in the halls.

Others have said that Jefferson's cafeteria lost money (since the activity period was before lunch, students left campus to eat).

A few weeks ago, the Horse Club, the Filipino Club and the CSF had meetings on the same day. The result was a limited turnout of members for each club meeting. Without most members present, a club really cannot have large-scale activities.

However, it was announced Feb. 13 that activity period will start again. Every two Wednesdays after school, beginning late this month, students again will be able to get these "extras" in. — KW

Society urges owners to prepare for pets in event of earthquake

Pet owners should make disaster preparations for their pets in the event of an earthquake, the Peninsula Humane Society advises.

"Many people have already taken the precaution of preparing an earthquake kit for themselves, and the humane society urges pet owners to do the same for their pets," said society spokesperson Jennifer Hill Bassing.

"Fill a waterproof bag with dry pet food, plastic dish, plastic bottle of water, an extra leash or cat harness, extra pet identification tag, the animal's medical records and any medication," she added.

A toy or a bone might also be a good idea, she said.

The society urges keeping the pet's bag right next to its owner's disaster kit. It recommends adding a cat carrier for cats.

Mrs. Bassing noted that in an earthquake disaster, human problems will take precedence over animal matters with authorities. It is important, she said, for pet owners to prepare to protect their own.

She noted that in the evacuation of Three Mile Island last year, disaster shelters were unable to accept pets. Many animals were deserted or left alone in abandoned homes, and animal shelters in that area were filled to overflowing with frightened, stray animals.

She said area residents should discuss emergency arrangements with friends, relatives and neighbors, and plan to provide for their pets in event of a disaster or evacuation.

An example would be to leave instructions with one's neighbor on what to do with one's pet until the owner can get there, she said.

"If you are home when an emergency occurs, and are forced to leave, do not abandon your pet," she added.

The society suggests that good training of a pet is helpful in an emergency, so that the pet responds and stays by its owner's side. Mrs. Bassing said that if an identification tag is lost, it could be serious — the tag might be the only way to reunite pet and owner.

The society in San Mateo has a check list available for pet owners who wish to prepare "before the big quake strikes," Mrs. Bassing said. Those wishing a free copy may write or phone the Peninsula Humane Society, 12 Airport Blvd., San Mateo, CA 94401.

Homeowners approve new by-laws

About 200 persons attended the second organizational meeting of the new St. Francis Heights Homeowners Association last Thursday night, approving by-laws of the organization and electing a board of directors.

The new president is Mrs. Virginia Duggan, 297 Del Prado Drive. Other officers are Fred Curtiss, vice president; Esther MacRunnels, secretary; Ernest Bloom, chief financial officer; and John Lauderdale, parliamentarian.

New directors are Hal Bromberg, Marie Guerrero, Alvin Schwarzbach, Raul Cornejo, Lorraine D'Elia, Thomas Stangelini, Berta Garrity, Rich Rusting, Virginia Tierney and Pat Hansen.

Mrs. Duggan said one of the first projects of the organization will be a voter registration drive. "Our goal is 100 percent of the voters for any election," she said.

Guest speakers at the meeting were Daly City Mayor Victor G. Kyriakis, County Supervisor Arlen F. Gregorio, and Daly City Skylions President Al Garibaldi, the latter reporting on work his club has done at the Jefferson Elementary School District's Savage school site, which the Lions have leased for use as ball fields.

Plant malfunction corrected

A major malfunction that caused a breakdown in normal secondary treatment at the North San Mateo County Sanitation District treatment plant in Daly City nearly two weeks ago has been corrected and it is hoped it will work.

Plant Supervisor William Keaney said Friday the reactor tanks into which oxygen is pumped to mix with the sewage to remove the odor, have been cleaned and the plugged oxygen lines cleared. Some adjustments to the mixer mechanism Thursday finished the job and the operation "is pretty much back to normal."

The strong sewage odor, which resembled rotten eggs at times, had permeated the local area 10 days ago and may still be noticeable, Keaney said it would take a few days for the treatment process to settle into its regular mode, so he wouldn't say definitely that it was working.

"But it looks like we got it turned around," he said.

The oxygen reactor tanks were emptied and cleaned by hand by treatment plant workers last Tuesday and Wednesday, he said.

Unlike other days last week, Keaney went on, there had been no complaints to the district office Friday about odors.

This latest problem was separate from the long-time odor troubles the district has had and which has kept its Westlake neighbors up in arms for years. A $466,000 contract was awarded recently for major work at the plant, including scrubbers and covers, that are designed to cut off all escaping odors. That project should be completed this spring.

In the meantime, Keaney, who came to the district in November, is working with the treatment process in an attempt to reduce the "sludge blanket" in the large clarifiers. Keeping it down to three or four feet thick instead of as much as six feet will help because there seems to be a correlation between the thickness of the blanket - settled solids - and the amount of gas emitted.

It's now officially the Year of the Monkey

By ARVILLE FINACOM

A moment after midnight early this morning it became 4678, the Year of the Monkey. So says the Chinese Lunar Calendar.

Although Asians in America use the same Western calendar as the rest of us, the day has importance beyond its ceremonial significance. It ties the Chinese of today to their beginnings 2,000-plus years before Christ, long before the heyday of Greece and the glory of Rome.

In fact, Chinese cultural roots go back even farther. True, the lunar calendar wasn't developed until approximately 2700 BC. But archeologists show that the beginnings of civilization in China parallel similar development in Mesopotamia and Egypt around the year 4500 BC.

Don't expect to find your Asian friends and neighbors celebrating publically. Yuan Don, New Year's Day, is observed quietly at home with family and friends. The public festivities begin Feb. 23 and culminate March 1 with the traditional Golden Dragon parade in San Francisco when residents and visitors line downtown streets to watch Gum Lung, the benevolent dragon, Sze Tse, the ceremonial lion, and Hah-O, the good luck monkey cavort.

Firecrackers will explode; people will shout, "Gung Hay Fat Choy!" and Asians as well as many non-Oriental Americans will pray that Sun Hou-Tze, the monkey king of Chinese legend, will bring them exceptionally good luck in this, his one-out-of-every-12, year.

Despite the fact that Chinese culture existed and that the Chinese were civilized in the sense of living together in a highly organized, harmonious society, Western Civilization was in only brief contact with the East during most of its history. Rome, in the days of its expansion around 100 BC, began trade with China; but these trade routes were disrupted some 300 years later by barbarian forces sweeping into both Europe and China from Central Asia.

In 1271, the Venetian Marco Polo made his celebrated visit to the Chinese court of the Mongol Emperor Kublai Khan; but it wasn't until the 16th century that direct trade routes were opened to the East. Some archeologists suspect that Chinese expeditions sailing to their 'east' may have set up trade with Mayans living in Mexico around the year 500 AD, a 1,000 years before Western civilization touched that area.

At any rate, significant contact between Western and Eastern civilization didn't occur until what historians call "modern" time.

As more and more contact developed, chroniclers tended to point out the differences between the cultures. Many used the phrase made popular by English poet Rudyard Kipling in his 1889 "Ballad of East and West" — "...Oh, East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet..." That particular philosophy suited the jingoistic, prideful western nations at the turn of the 20th century. It doesn't seem as apt today. Few consider that Kipling realized that fact as well.

"The Ballad..." in some of its not so often quoted phrases concludes "...But there is neither East nor West, border, nor breed, nor birth, When two strong men stand face to face, though they come from the ends of the earth!"

It is only in relatively recent years that Americans in any great numbers have ceased to view other cultures disdainfully. Although it would be foolish to deny that pockets of outright racism and psudo ethnic pride still do exist, most Americans seem ready to study and consider the merits of other cultures.

Educators and media people both stress increasing acceptance of the contributions made to society through ethnic and cultural diversity. Key to such acceptance comes in understanding the various cultures, and understanding comes best through first hand experience.

Perspective

The "Center for Multi-Cultural Studies" is not a center in the strict sense of the word. Although it does have some special materials, it has no special building. Rather, the Center embodies an emphasis which began in 1978 when members of the three major Lutheran judicatories in the Western United States talked about preparing seminary students at inter-synodical Pacific Lutheran Theological Seminasry in Berkeley for work on the ethnically and culturally diverse West Coast.

Chief aim of the Center is to develop a cultural awareness among participants who "may have never discovered their own roots, much less looked beyond them."

The program's coordinators inlcude PLTS President Dr. Walter Stuhr, Dr. Edmond Yee, adjunct professor of Asian studies, and Dr. Will Herzfield, adjunct professor of urban ministry. According to Dr. Stuhr, other members of the PLTS faculty approve the emphasis, seeing "being in tune with the society" as a primary factor in theological education today.

Students involved in last fall's first regular course "People of Color: A Study of Ethnic Communities and Ministry," commented that the subject matter was something "that everyone (in seminary) should deal with." They enjoyed the class approach which featured such guests as Native American leader Dennis Banks and Sam Hernandez, coordinator of Hispanic Ministry for the South Pacific District, American Lutheran Church. They did, however, experience frustration with the amount of material covered. Who wouldn't, given consideration to black, hispanic and Native American roots along with Oriental ones in the space of one semester.

Perhaps the best way to look at Center activity is to consider it a focus, an opportunity to draw together the expertise of the personnel available. Course work is part of regular faculty assignment.

Last summer Dr. Yee taught "Confucianism and Christianity" in the seminary's Continuing Education program. This semester, Dr. Herzfield teams with Dr. Ted Peters to present "Readings in Liberation Theology."

Beginning in fall 1980, such courses will be a required part of all seminarians' training. Not only will those already committed to the concept of multi cultural awareness as a valid part of ministry be involved in it. Every seminarian will participate at some time in his or her preparatory career. Stress will continue to be on understanding — first, of one's own socio, economic, political, cultural and religious heritage, and then that of others.

No one pretends the Center offers all the answers, even any answers at all. Dr. Yee puts it simply. "It (the Center) can only stimulate you to go on, questioning, thinking, striving, then doing." In a world shrunk electronically if not actually to a single global village, that is all any such Center can really hope to do.

The board of directors of the Daly City Ballet will install officers during 7:30 p.m., Feb. 25 ceremonies.

Mrs. Marie Brizuela, outgoing president, will relinquish her gavel to incoming President Alice Solomon. Company Director Diane Roberts will conduct the installation.

Other officers to be installed include Dianne Correa, vice president; Mrs. Brizuela, recording secretary; and Tina Bianchini, treasurer.

The evening will complete three years of service as president by Mrs. Brizuela. Members of her board recently honored her at a thank-you dinner at Joe's of Westlake.

Among those attending, along with Mrs. Solomon, Mrs. Correa and Mrs. Bianchini, were Linda Bever, Mary Tschirgi and Barbara Brown, a former president.

Friends of JoAnn Balestrieri will not be surprised to learn that she has been voted "Employee of the Year" at the Westlake branch of Bank of America.

Mrs. Balestrieri gave up her career 15 years ago to devote herself to being a mother and doing all the volunteer work and committee chores that entails.

When her children reached an age of self-sufficiency, she decided to return to work — and one year ago went to work at the bank.

In that year, she has established herself as an outstanding employee and a warm, friendly human being, hence the accolade from co-workers and employers.

Attending golden anniversary of managers

Le Pacini

Not many people ever get the pleasure of attending the Golden Wedding Anniversary of their first two baseball managers. I did recently...and no, it wasn't one of those weird kinds of wedding anniversaries you might be seeing in San Francisco in half a century hence. It was perfectly normal.

It was the 50th wedding anniversary of Joe and Jeanette Gaggero, and they were my first two baseball managers.

Jeanette, in fact, was my first manager, being, unintentionally, at the forefront of the women's movement. I was 12 years old and playing sans uniform (in those days, only the "big" kids got uniforms) for the Portola Merchants, a team entered in what was then the C-Novis League of the San Francisco Park and Recreation Department Saturday playground program.

Joe in those days was running so many teams, from C-Novice on up to the semi-pro clubs (in the days when many San Francisco semi-pro clubs could have entered the pros at th class A or even AA and held their own), that he often just couldn't make it to every game. He was having a particularly rough time in 1946, so he "gave" his C-Novis team to Jeanette, who had been his official scorekeeper and unofficial sounding board for enough years to know how he would run a team, anyway.

She had to be one helluva manager, because I went 6-for-6 in the first game of organized baseball I ever played, and went on to win the championship.

Joe got nervous about all of that and took us back for the next league. I guess he figured that Jeanette might be getting notions of striking out on her own, and it wouldn't have done anything for the household tranquility for her to beat him out of a championship someday. In fact, who knows? Perhaps it was that decision of Joe's to take us under his wings and put Jeanette back behind the scorebook that insured he and Jeanette reaching that 50th.

I'm glad they made it, not only because they deserved it, but also because it provided for all who attended a happy walk back through the past; a past when people played baseball for the sheer joy of it.

The guest list comprised a veritable mini-who's-who of semi-pro baseball; a cache of players and umpires that produced a flow of stories and memories that made one wish that the innocence of playing-just-to-play (and not with a particular monetary reward in mind) had never left.

The legendary Walt Lister, now 78, possibly the greatest semi-pro pitcher of them all, was there; so were a couple of great semi-pro infielders--Al Belletto (also one of my former managers) and Chauncey Griggs; and Kenny Rodenberger, Andy Dermanich, Dick Code, Goose Gosland and others whom I met after several glasses of champagne too many and who now slip my mind. I apologize.

Also there, of course, were the sons of Joe and Jeanette, Joe Jr. and Ronnie, who we used to call Pee-Wee, before he got to be a muscular 6-footer. They both played pro, Joe in the Yankee chain, Ronnie with the Cards, and were teammates on the University of California's last national baseball championship team. Needless to say, they were great semi-pros, too.

But the best thing they did was throw the party for their parents. It was an evening we'll all remember.

JUST 48 hours later I had another evening to remember--the 42nd anniversary dinner of the Oldtimers Baseball Association of San Francisco as the guest of Tony Gomez, one of the best right-handed hitters I ever saw in the semi-pros.

If the Gaggeros' shindig was like a Who's-Who in San Francisco (and Peninsula) semi-pro baseball, this one was at least a Hall of Fame of San Francisco semi-pro ball.

Virtually everybody I had seen at the Golden Wedding Anniversary was at the Oldtimers' Golden Anniversary (minus eight), they and ten-fold their numbers.

The stories, naturally, abounded. I also noticed something that had been consistent with the stories from the previous meeting of old-time semi-pros. As the hour got later, all the batting averages went up. By the time I left, even I had been at least a .450 hitter, in my day.

One piece of trivia I retained--many pieces were proferred and forgotten as my batting average went up--was the personnel that attends 7 a.m. mass at St. Dunstan's in Millbrae, as presided over by Father Joe O'Connell, who qualifies mainly because he is a scratch golfer.

An autograph seeker could do well at that early St. Dunstan's mass, which is attended by George Kelly (Giants' Hall of Fame first baseman); Gussie Suhr, the former Seals and Pirate great, the first baseman who for years held the National League consecutive games played record; Willie Kamm, the billiant, golden-gloved third baseman of the Seals and White Sox and the first man to ever be sold to the majors for $100,000; Eddie Mulligan, former big league third baseman who played for almost every Pacific Coast League team extant (if there were a Coast League Hall of Fame, he'd be among the original inductees) and who later became president of the California League; and Jerry Donovan, another Coast League great for the Seals who was later president of the Seals, then a Giants' executive.

ONE OF those missing at the Oldtimers' celebration was Milt Axt, who had died unexpectly of a massive coronary just a few days before.

Milt would have been in his glory at the Oldtimers' gathering, because, as a former catcher (Poly High, Santa Clara) and Poly baseball. He could throw baseball stories around with the best of them; and as a former football player and coach (at Poly, he hung up with a remarkable 19-year record of 195-25-11), he could add the football stories and leave them all groping for adjectives.

Less than two months before Milt's death, I had the pleasure of sharing a table with him at one of Marino Pieretti's monthly luncheons.

As always, he was full of anecdotes and humorous remarks about the sports scene; in apparently good health, and certainly his usual good mood.

To a writer, men like Axt are like transfusions, and now Milt is gone, and the transfusions of witty and knowing words are gone, and we'll all miss Milt Axt and everything he brought to sports in particular, and to life in general.

TAG END: Warriors forward Tom Abernethy, known in the trade for his ability to "protect" the ball, is currently averaging just 1.5 turnovers per 48 minutes.

If that doesn't lead to the NBA, it's got to be darned close. And maybe it also means that Abernethy should be getting in more playing time, particularly in those dreaded last three minutes, when no Warrior seems to be able to hang onto the ball.

The Regent

By ROBIN MOELLER

The Prom Committee met last Friday. Members include Karma McDonald, Regina King, Dilia Bustmonte, Robert Bomilla, Marlena Yee, Daryl Hall, Abby Roman, Daphne Jackson,, Doris Masferrer, Roshanne Nancy, Sandy Walls.

A Valentine's Day dance was sponsored by the juniors last Friday. Dr. Funk was the DJ.

Coach Mosely will be leading the Serramonte boys' baseball team this season. Signups were held last week.

Students who don't pay their book bills at Serramonte will not receive report cards in the mails. A list of students who owe book bills is posted in the South Mall and it the library. Bills must be paid to Mrs. Madrieres, treasurer, during a lunch period.

Any Serramonte freshman interested in a scholarship to the Fountain Valley School of Colorado should see Mrs. Haun, the counselor. There is an opportunity for Serramonte students to compete for a cash award by writing an essay. Mr. Campbell has details.

There will be "an award" to congratulate Mr. Campbell as our new principal this Thursday at 7 p.m., prior to the PTSA meeting, which will start at 7:45 p.m.

Serramonte held its first "Kiss the Pig" contest Feb. 14. Votes were accepted for three days, each costing a penny. Candidates included Principal Campbell, Mrs. Cahill, Mr. Young and student body leaders.

A rally was held last Thursday, at which the top two students and faculty members had to kiss the pig. The winners — perhaps the losers? — at the 20-minute rally were Mr. Young and Mrs. Cahill from the administration and Gina Hom and Gina Lim of the student body.

Young was the big vote-getter.

The PTSA, which sponsored the activity, made $60, which will be used for student-oriented events.

Tomorrow, seniors will be measured for their graduation caps and gowns. Cost will be $7.50, payable to the school cashier. Any senior ordering a cap and gown after Feb. 21 must order from the company on a late-order form.

Cost, then, will be $12.50, payable to the company selling the items.

THE DIET CORNER

By ELISE GENDAR

Know what happened to the guy who came up with the idea that led to the discovery of calories?

He lost his head in the French Revolution, that's what!

It's generally accepted that Antoine Lavoisier was the first nutritionist -- he was the one to suggest that the human body burns food to produce energy. But the mob would have none of him. The cry was, "The Revolution has no need for intellectuals!"

He's probably been a candidate for decapitation millions of times since whenever a despairing dieter has lost count somewhere between the 1,101 calorie and the 1,102.

That's why the easiest way to control what you eat is not through the calorie tables but the controlled portion diet.

It's simpler to weight portions or measure them than to carry around an addition machine -- even some of those fantastic little models that fit into the palm of your hand.

I may not be able to balance my own checkbook (as any third-rate comedian will tell you) -- but, boy, can I balance a diet!

Take this recipe:

BEEF STROGANOFF

2 lbs lean beef, trimmed of fat, cut into one-half inch wide strips
1/2 teaspoon salt
dash of pepper
1/2 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons dried onion flakes
1 cup canned mushrooms with liquid
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1 pkt beef broth mix
2 tablespoons worchestershire sauce
1 cup plain yogurt
1 tablespoon sherry flavoring (optional)

1 — Cut meat into uniform strips while partially frozen. Be sure all fat is removed. Sprinkle paprika, salt and pepper over meat strips.

2 — Brown meat in large Teflon or Pam-sprayed skillet. Add dried onion flakes, mushrooms with liquid, garlic powder, beef broth mix and worcestershire. Simmer about 15 minutes or until meat is tender.

3 — Stir a bit of hot liquid into yogurt. Add to skillet and stir well. Do not boil.

4 — Add sherry flavoring. Serve over hot, cooked, well-drained bean sprouts that have been seasoned with onion flakes, while cooking. This can be served hot from a chafing dish. Noodles may be served to persons not on a weight-control program.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

Lent sure is starting early in the year. Today is Ash Wednesday and a good day to offer this attractive and tasty Lenten dish, green peppers stuffed with salmon, rice and cheese.

SALMON PEPPERS

3 large green peppers
1 can salmon (15½ ounces)
1 cup cubed American cheese
one-half teaspoon worchestershire sauce
1 cup cooked rice
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon dried minced onion
one-quarter teaspoon salt
1 can (8 ounce) tomato sauce

Cut the three peppers in half, lengthwise; remove seeds. Cook in boiling water two minutes; drain.

Drain the canned salmon and break into small pieces. Combine with the cup cubed cheese, half-teaspoon worchestershire sauce, one cup of cooked rice, the egg, one teaspoon minced onion and a fourth of a teaspoon of salt.

Heap the salmon-rice mixture into peppers and arrange in baking dish. Pour the eight ounces of tomato sauce over the top and bake in a 350-degree foven for thirty minutes.

Serves six.

Samuel Chandler

Look at your furnishings. At various times American interiors have been called vigorous, urbane, subjective, ponderous, jaunty, explosive, smooth, flowing and even in good taste. Margaret Halsey, in her "With Malice Towards Some," admitted that some American interior designs are execrable while others have as much good taste as a wart. A British writer used the terms "Titantic vulgarity" and "unconscious absurdity" to describe many American interiors. Recently a noted interior decorator moaned that Californians throw things together with "ingenious fancy."

To help Americans decorate, the publishing firms are issuing some handsome volumes on interior decorating. One of the latest bears the title "The Apartment Book," (Harmony Books, $25), and has for a subtitle, "Space strategies for condominiums, co-ops, high-rises, brownstones and even houses."

It is a strange volume of double pages in splendid color. Each left-hand page of the double page section pictures a setting with a "penthouse look" and a high price while the right-hand page illustrates how the "sleek, slick, sophisticated" designs may be adapted to a moderate pocketbook. For example, on page 15 an inverted basket filled with sand bags and a large piece of cut glass are substituted for an expensive rattan table in an island wicker setting. On another page wallpaper, priced $25 at a local store, is substituted for a "Suzann" pattern that sells for nearly that much per roll.

"Interior decoration starts with trusting yourself," the authors write, and stamping "your own style on your space." But "your style" can be extended by noting the designs of the experts and by following the rules and procedures they use.

To help this endeavor "The Apartment Book" contains a section of apt information. Here the editors of "Apartment Life" magazine bring together knowledge of such things as how to use a molly-bolt or a toggle-bolt and how to change the door knob. It also tells how to look for an apartment and what are the rights of tenants.

Because the "Apartment Book" is useful and colorful, it has received high accolades from book reviewers around the country.

"Be Your Own Decorator," by Carleton Varney (Playboy Press, $17.95), is a more conventional book with a similar theme. "Decorate around your personality," Mr. Varney writes, "I believe everyone has a unique personality and your personality should show in the way your home is decorated." In the introduction he continues, "My major intent has been to make people aware of the potential for beauty in the home environment."

Varney's rules of thumb for decorating are illustrated in the titles of his sections. For example there are: "The Kitchen: Make It a Happy Place," and "Entryways--a Hearty and Happy Welcome," and "Conversation Groupings and Other Furniture Arrangement." Varney's advice to readers is timely, it calls for good taste and simplicity in every room.

"...Bring personal warmth to your home and remembering that pretty alone isn't what you're striving for--it's a look that says welcome, a happy comfortable atmosphere that makes friends and family glad they're there."

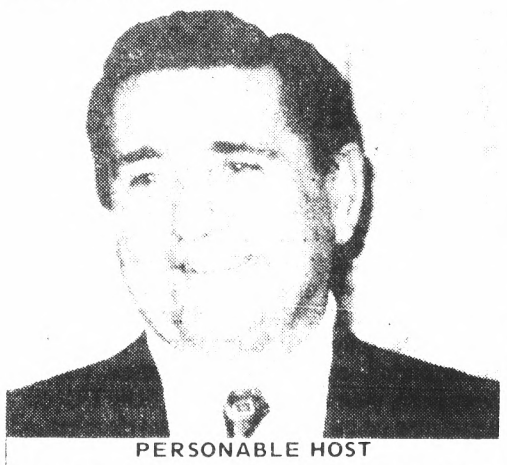
BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD ★ JOHNSON

Biagi and Flood are Biagi's hosts

The re-appearance on the Peninsula restaurant scene of debonair DAN BIAGI as he welcomes old friends and new patrons to his new BIAGI'S European restaurant in Redwood City is good news for the legion of fans who remember him and his cuisine at his swank Cote D'Azur in Atherton. Co-owner is FRANK FLOOD, prominent Peninsula sportsman and social figure. ... June Lockhart and Tom Ewell, in the Bay Area for starring roles in the hit stageplay "Bedroom Farce," delighted fans by signing autographs between bites of Breast of Chicken Tiffany during dinner at ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB, in the heart of San Francisco's Geary Street "Theater Row." ... A real treat this weekend would be a scenic jaunt over to THE CYPRESS HOUSE in Half Moon Bay for Sunday Brunch or an intimate dinner in the wood-paneled dining room a-bloom with fresh flowers and indoor plants. Top the day off in the cozy cocktail lounge, where live entertainment is featured. ... Jimmy Price and his 18-piece Big Band, a smash hit at BIMBO'S 365 CLUB earlier this month, will return to the famous San Francisco showroom for an encore dance concert Friday, Feb. 22, from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. Admission is $7.50.



PERSONABLE HOST

Ray Plunkett, owner of North Lake Tahoe's Tahoe Mariner Hotel, is an old hand at being the congenial, hospitable host. The Yachtsman's Galley is a popular rendezvous for ski buffs, who are especially appreciative of the breakfast variety.

Finocchio revue attracts crowds

High standards of entertainment continues to attract big crowds to world famed FINOCCHIO'S on San Francisco's Broadway. The varied entertainment of versatile female impersonators includes singers, dancers and comedienes from all over the world. There are four nightly shows, starting at 9 p.m. Doors open at 8 p.m. each night, except Mondays and Thursdays. ... Party planners: THE LEANING TOWER restaurant in South San Francisco has the Tuscany Room available for groups up to 70 persons for dinner or afternoon meetings. To try them fine Italian food in the Tuscany style, drop by for lunch or dinner. ... PHIL LEHR created his nationally famous Pay By Ounce method of steak service because he believed that people shouldn't have to pay for more steak than they can eat. When you dine at the Steakery, on the lower level of the S.F. Hilton Tower, steaks are cut to your exact order and weighed on a butcher's scale. The weight of the steak, in ounces or grams, determines the price of your dinner. ... Only the finest ingredients go into all the menu selections at VINCE'S Italian and Seafood restaurant. When extra time is required for preparation of specialties such as Veal Scallopini, it is indicated on the menu.

Lehr's Greenhouse specialties appeal

The dinner menu at LEHR'S GREENHOUSE in San Francisco appeals to a wide range of tastes with a selection of American and continental specialties ranging from Four Star Duckling to Broiled Double Lamb Chops. A specialty is Lehr's exclusive Papaya Chicken. ... Although famed for pastas and pizzas, something not always expected by newcomers to ROMANO'S Italian restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, is the variety of seafood specialties on the menu. Selections are available a la carte or on the dinner. Their home made Bouillabaisse (seafood stew) makes you want to tie a napkin around your neck and dig right in. ... Don't be puzzled if you see Sheriff's Office or California Highway Patrol cars parked outside HELEN'S "EL" FRANKFURT restaurant in Moss Beach. It's just that these gallant knights of the road know where to find good authentic German food served in ample amounts and home cooked by Owner-chef HELEN SCHOLTZ. ... "It's a real good deal," are reports coming in from those who have checked out the Char Broil Steak special at RON'S STEAK HOUSE in Millbrae. Served seven days a week from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., the special includes potatoes and help-yourself Salad Bar ... all for only $3.69.

Dal Baffo owners extend hospitality

A lavish dinner party for 20 honored guests, who are Amway Distributors in Canada visiting the Bay Area as a tour group, was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Griffith (Carol) and daughter Rene at the DAL BAFFO European restaurant in downtown Menlo Park. Owner-chef VINCENZO LO GRASSO and his gracious wife "CATHY" extended hospitality with extra culinary touches. ... All entrees served at LA PINATA Mexican restaurant in downtown Burlingame are cooked individually when ordered and there's a plentiful array of choices ... "For a taste thrill," as it says on the menu at NICK'S in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, try Frog Legs. This is a real delicacy enjoyed by many epicureans who frequent this seaside restaurant. ... Oregon State Basketball Coach Ralph Miller and his wife were recent dinner guests at JIM SNIADECKI'S SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant in Redwood City. ... ALFREDO'S "nightly dinner specials" (New York Steak, Half Roast Chicken, or Prime Rib) include soup or Salad Bar, baked potato or spaghetti, and bread and butter for only $4.95. Available seven nights a week (including Sundays) from 4 to 10 p.m. ... FRED DAMATO is currently checking plans, renderings, permits, etc. for the expansion of his European-style DANIEL'S CAFE in Belmont. Damato continues to oversee the day-to-day restaurant activities.

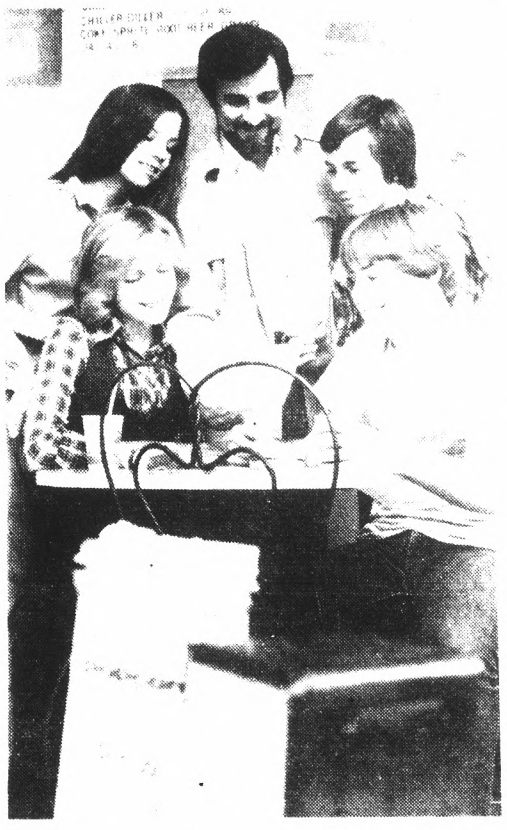
Be somebody. Be a carrier!

Earn money!

When you're a newspaper carrier, you earn money every week. Your own money! For clothes . . . records . . . hobbies . . . or for something special like a bike, a stereo or your own TV. Money to save for the future, too . . . for school or some other important expense. It's your money. You earn it, save it, spend it . . . and learn for yourself how to handle it wisely.

Win prizes!

Newspaper carriers also participate in sales contests with chances to win a lot of "extras"! You can earn extra cash . . . special trips . . . and great prizes! Sports equipment, television sets and stereos, watches and jewelry . . . there are dozens of valuable prizes to choose from. As a newspaper carrier, each new subscriber you sign up helps you win these "extras"!



Have fun!

Being a newspaper carrier is fun! As a carrier, you'll get to meet and work with others your age. You'll get to go to special meetings where you'll learn the art of selling. And when you're a top carrier, you'll get the chance to earn extra money, super prizes, and have some great times with other carriers. It's a terrific way to make new friends!

Be somebody!

When you're a newspaper carrier, you're not just a kid anymore. Being a carrier shows that you can do something important and do it well. Chances are you'll do better in school (most carriers do). And the things you learn about handling money and working with people will help you be successful in the future . . . no matter what you do!

If you're 10 years or older and want to do something important, find out more! Call 348-4411 or send in the coupon today!
